$$\text{Cash Settlement Amount} = \text{Number of Put Warrants} \times \frac{(\text{Exercise Price} - \text{Closing Price})}{\text{Exercise Ratio}}$$

In the event that the Cash Settlement Amount after deduction of the exercise expenses is equal to or less than zero on the Expiry Date, the Put Warrants shall terminate on the Expiry Date and cease to be valid and the Issuer's obligations in respect of the Put Warrants shall terminate absolutely. 1. TERMS AND CONDITIONS (Cont'd)

Best and worst case scenarios of the Holders' investment in the Put Warrants

Best case scenario:

The price of FCPO decreases substantially, resulting in a significant increase in the price of the Put Warrants. If the Holders sell the Put Warrants prior to the Expiry Date, the more the selling price exceeds the purchase price of the Put Warrants, the higher the Holders' return will be after considering any transaction cost. On the other hand, if the Holders hold the Put Warrants until the Expiry Date, the lower the Closing Price of FCPO is relative to the Exercise Price of the Put Warrants, the higher the Holders' return will be after considering any transaction cost.

Worst case scenario:

The price of FCPO increases substantially, resulting in a significant decrease in the price of the Put Warrants. If the Holders hold the Put Warrants until the Expiry Date and the Closing Price of FCPO is equal to or above the Exercise Price, or if the Issuer is insolvent and does not have sufficient funds to pay the Cash Settlement Amount, the Holders will lose the entire value of their investment, in addition to any transaction cost.

2. RISK FACTORS

BEFORE INVESTING IN THE PUT WARRANTS, YOU SHOULD CAREFULLY CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING RISK FACTORS IN ADDITION TO THE OTHER INFORMATION CONTAINED ELSEWHERE IN THIS TERM SHEET AND THE RISK FACTORS AND OTHER INFORMATION CONTAINED IN THE BASE PROSPECTUS AND THE FIRST SUPPLEMENTARY BASE PROSPECTUS.

Your investment decision should be based solely upon your own independent assessment of our financial conditions and affairs, and your own appraisal of our prospects, Affin Hwang IB's creditworthiness, the Terms, FCPO and any other factors relevant to your decision, including the merits and risks involved.

2.1 We have not performed any investigation and review of FCPO

We have not performed any investigation or review of FCPO. Therefore, our issuance of Put Warrants over FCPO does not represent a recommendation by us to invest in FCPO.

In addition, you should be aware that Bursa Securities and Bursa Derivatives have not participated in the preparation of the Base Prospectus, the First Supplementary Base Prospectus and this Term Sheet, or in establishing the Terms. Further, Bursa Securities and Bursa Derivatives have no obligation with respect to the settlement amount to be paid to you (if any) upon exercise of the Put Warrants, including any obligation to take into account, for any reason, our needs or your needs.

2.2 Adjustment related risks

The occurrence of Market Disruption Event of FCPO may entitle us to adjust the Terms of the Put Warrants. However, we are not obliged to adjust the Terms of the Put Warrants for every event that affects FCPO. Any adjustment or decision not to make any adjustment may adversely affect the value of the Put Warrants.

2.3 Inherent risks relating to FCPO

FCPO is a Ringgit Malaysia denominated Crude Palm Oil Futures Contract traded on Bursa Derivatives. Since October 1980, FCPO has provided market participants a global price benchmark for the crude palm oil market. In addition, FCPO is used by edible oils and fats industry players for risk management, as well as by fund managers and financial institutions for managing price fluctuations in the crude palm oil market.

Fluctuations in the price of crude palm oil could adversely affect the price of FCPO. Price movements of FCPO is influenced by factors such as market supply and demand, government policies, and geopolitical situations. Additional risks include volatility caused by changes in weather patterns and climate conditions, which can significantly affect palm oil production. Currency fluctuations, particularly between the RM and other major trading currencies, can also impact FCPO prices. Furthermore, speculative trading activity and global economic conditions may amplify price swings, creating increased uncertainty for investors. This may, in turn, adversely affect the trading price of the Put Warrants.

2. RISK FACTORS (Cont'd)

2.4 Inherent risks relating to commodities and commodity futures

Investments in commodities and the corresponding underlying commodity futures may be subject to greater volatility than investments in traditional securities. The reasons that cause such volatility to the prices of commodities and commodity futures are, among others, various macro economic factors such as changing supply and demand relationships, climatic and geopolitical conditions, disease, and other natural phenomena, agricultural, trade, fiscal, monetary, and exchange control programmes (i.e. governmental restrictions on foreign exchange transactions) and policies of governments (including government intervention in certain markets) and other unforeseeable events. Such factors will influence the price of the FCPO and consequently the value of the Put Warrants.

2.5 The Base Prospectus, the First Supplementary Base Prospectus and this Term Sheet are not the sole basis for making an investment decision

The Base Prospectus, the First Supplementary Base Prospectus and this Term Sheet do not take into account your investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs. Nothing in the Base Prospectus, the First Supplementary Base Prospectus or this Term Sheet should be construed as a recommendation by us or our affiliates to invest in the Put Warrants or FCPO.

2.6 Impact of COVID-19 and possible similar future outbreaks

The COVID-19 endemic and any possible future outbreaks of viruses may have significant adverse effect on the performance of FCPO and consequently materially and adversely affect the performance of the Put Warrants.

The COVID-19 endemic and any possible future outbreaks may also have a negative effect on the financial markets in which the Group operates in, which could in turn affect the Group's profits and financial position, hence our ability to perform our obligations in respect of the Put Warrants. Accordingly, you should evaluate the Put Warrants on your own or consult your investment adviser.

2.7 Tax implications

The buy and sell transactions of Structured Warrants on Bursa Securities are subjected to stamp duty. In addition, income tax or capital gain tax treatment may vary depending on the legal identity of an investor, or the classification of income from the investment of Structured Warrants by the relevant tax authorities.

From time to time, tax laws and regulations as well as their application by the relevant taxation authorities are subjected to changes. If you are in doubt, please consult your own independent tax advisers on your tax position considering your individual circumstances before investing in the Structured Warrants.

A positive payoff is only attainable if the price of FCPO is below the break-even level upon the exercise of the Put Warrants.
